Measuring Life by a Different Standard

Third Quarter 2013

During the first half of this year, Golden Rules has commemorated B+R Partners Tenth Anniversary, and to highlight this milestone, we are walking down memory lane for all four editions of this year. We have continued to scour our past musings to re-publish our favorite words of wit – with an attempt to continue to Measure Life by a Different Standard. Here are some of the thoughts from 2007-2009.

- No matter how happy a man is in his job, it always pleases him to discover that there is another employer who wishes he was not.
- When you were born, you were crying and everyone around was smiling. Live your life so that when you die, you're the one who is smiling, and everyone around you is crying.
- Why pay money to have your family tree traced? Go into politics and your opponents will do it for you.
- The man who complains about the way the ball bounces is likely to be the one who dropped it. Coach Lou Holtz
- I never graduated from the University of Iowa, but I was only there for two terms – Truman's and Eisenhower's. Alex Karras
- If lessons are learned in defeat, our team is getting a great education. Coach Murray Warmath
- I played as much golf as I could in North Dakota, but summer up there is pretty short. It usually falls on Tuesday. Mike Morley
- In Scotland, there is no such thing as bad weather; only the wrong clothes.
- A government which robs Peter to pay Paul can always depend on the support of Paul. George Bernard Shaw
- The inherent vice of capitalism is the unequal sharing of the blessings. The inherent blessing of socialism is the equal sharing of misery. Winston Churchill
